

DURRANT RECEIVES AWARD FOR DAVENPORT COURTHOUSE RENOVATION

The Durrant Group Inc., in association with Downing Architects in Bettendorf, Iowa, recently received a Certificate of Citation from the American Institute of Architects Academy of Architecture for Justice for its design services on the Davenport U.S. Courthouse renovation.

The AIA Academy of Architecture for Justice selected 27 projects to be published in the 2007 Justice Facilities Review to showcase projects which exemplify strategies and the latest trends in the design and construction of justice facilities throughout the United States. Eight of these projects, including the Davenport U.S. Courthouse renovation, were awarded citations for the highest level of architectural and design excellence.

According to the AIA Academy of Architecture for Justice, the jury chooses projects for publication that “demonstrate quality of form, functionality, and current architectural responses to complex justice design issues.” Jury chair Laurence E. Hartman, AIA, writes: “The Justice Facilities Review Jury was pleased to have several high-quality submissions representing projects in all areas of criminal justice—from a single-purpose facility to a multifunctional complex... These projects exemplify a level of design quality that is exceptional and will serve as worthy examples for fellow architects or practitioners in justice.”
